

JOB DESCRIPTION

Position Title: Web Developer

Industry: Life Insurance

Reports To: Head of Technology

Salary Range: Competitive

Company Overview:

LifeTrends® is a dynamic organization which specializes in providing competitive intelligence for Life Insurance companies and Insurance Marketing Organizations. We are seeking a skilled, energetic web developer to join our growing team in Austin, TX. The ideal candidate for this position will have a background in web application development, with a focus on data reporting applications.

Position Summary:

The web developer will be responsible for primarily the front-end development work on LifeTrends web applications. This role will continuously evolve our existing platform and develop any new applications using current technologies to deliver a modern, clean interface. LifeTrends client portals are data intensive products with interactive features, charts, and graphs so some experience with MVC frameworks and charting libraries will be required. While the focus of the web developer role will be front end development any experience with C#, REST APIs, and SQL will be prioritized.

Essential Job Functions:

- Implement and update user interfaces according to design changes
- Modernize and update existing functionality to current standards
- Development of new website features and reports
- Gathering statistics and feedback on website use and recommending changes
- Aligning existing code to consistent policies and frameworks
- Contribute, develop and implement ideas that will help LifeTrends® provide new and innovative solutions to their clients
- Testing website functionality across multiple browsers and devices and maintaining compatibility
- Keep up with and evaluate the latest web development technologies and standards
- Assist the business by handling high level technical support
